Talbott is Quitting $60,000-Year Partnership

Eisenhower to Study Record of Air Secretary

Talbott Tells Senate Group He Will Not Resign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott told Senate investigators today he is pulling out of his $60,000-a-year private business partnership.

Meanwhile, President Eisenhower said he personally will study the record in the Talbott case and decide whether the air secretary has violated ethics of government.

The President said at his news conference he will make the study after the Senate investigating subcommittee finishes its inquiry into Talbott's outside business activities.

Talbott in the meantime told a reporter he does not intend to resign as Air Force secretary. He made that statement on entering the subcommittee room as the investigation was resumed at 10 a.m.

Talbott on the Stand

Then he took the stand and told the investigators he has done nothing dishonest or illegal in his Pentagon post to further his interest in Paul B. Mulligan & Co., management engineers.

But he said he now realizes he was "mistaken" in using his office and Air Force stationery to help the firm's business.

"My greatest concern in the world is the Air Force," Talbott said, reading from a prepared statement. "I've lived it and worked it until it is part of my body."

"Rather than injure the Air Force I would divest myself of Mulligan & Co. interest 15 times over."

Therefore, he said, he took legal action on July 22 to end his partnership.

Talbott read to the subcommittee a letter to his partner, dated the 22nd—the day after he told the subcommittee he would quit the firm if the senators thought it would help the Air Force.

The secretary's letter told Mulligan that he had decided to pull out of the partnership regardless of the subcommittee's decision.

President Eisenhower at his news conference did not pass judgment on Talbott. He appeared a little sad at having to deal with such an issue in his official family so soon after his diplomatic accomplishments at Geneva.

He pointed out that no one has accused Talbott of fraud or illegality. But he asserted: it is not enough for a man holding office merely to be innocent of illegal activity. There are questions of ethics, too.

The President said he plans to read every available record when it is complete. Then he personally will have to decide the issue of ethics involved.

Talbott told the senators he had given only a "trivial" part of his time to Mulligan & Co. He estimated it as 2½ days out of 12½ years while he has been Air Force secretary.

The air secretary's testimony apparently closed the hearings, subject only to a telephone conversation this afternoon between Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark) and aircraft makers Donald W. Douglas Sr. and Jr. The subcommittee chairman wanted to inquire about their relations with Talbott and the Mulligan firm.

Talbott told the subcommittee that when he took office, he divested himself of stocks which since have risen in value by about $750,000. He said this involved giving up an income of $100,000 a year, but he was "glad to do it."

The only thing he retained—aside from stocks in companies which do no defense work that he knows of—was his interest in Mulligan & Co.

About 85 garments, which were judged yesterday at the city hall, will be modeled by the girls at the revue. Mrs. Harper said these garments, which were unusually good, were judged by Mrs. Jean Welborn, White county home adviser.

From the group who will model Friday night, seven girls will be selected to participate at the Illinois state fair along with a Saline county girl who will be chosen for flower arrangement next week.

The garments modeled will be exhibited in floral hall at the Saline county fair all next week.

Two Russians Know the Answers In Touring Peoria Tractor Plant

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI) — Two Soviet engineers returned to their inspection of Illinois tractor factories today, even though they seemed to know all there is to know about the subject.

The Russians, members of a group of 12 Soviet farm experts, were to complete their tour of the rambling Caterpillar Tractor Co. plant here and then hop on a plane for the John Deere & Co. tractor plant at East Moline.

But Aleksandr Ezhiviski and Nikolai Bogach had already shown their hosts that there isn't much they don't know about making tractors.

In their tour of the Caterpillar plant Tuesday, the Russians bemoaned officials with technological questions and then nodded at the answers as if they knew them all along.

It appeared they were merely re-checking information they already possessed.

Their interpreter, Russian-born Alex Goloff, said "they don't really have to ask."

"They seem to know most of the answers already," said Goloff, a Caterpillar employee. "They're familiar with manufacturing processes and automation."

"They not only know all about jig-boring equipment, but they know the name of every jig-boring equipment manufacturer in the United States."

Goloff constantly interpreted the Russians' comments as "he knows that quite well," "he says he's familiar with that," or "they have that in Russia."

Ezhiviski and Bogach are well qualified to play the experts' role. Ezhiviski is assistant to the minister in charge of agricultural production in Russia and Bogach is director of a farm machine and tractor pool.

At a news conference later, they indicated they were not overwhelmed by what they had seen at Peoria.

Ezhiviski, who took the lead, said "I did not find any great difference" between Russian and American production methods.

"There are some very interesting things about this plant but there are also some things that could be improved by techniques used in our country," he said.

The Russians breezed through the Caterpillar plant, apparently not bothered by muggy 90-degree heat.

GOP Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. (Mass) led the losing fight for the President's bond financing program.

"The only way to get roads when we need them," he told the House, is to approve issuance of the 30-year bonds and "make it less burdensome on the taxpayers."

"Those who want roads without increasing taxes," he said, "will vote for the President's bill."

Chairman George H. Fallon (D-Md.) of public works subcommittee which drafted the Democrats' tax-hiking bill, protested that the President's program would require 11½ billion dollars in interest "that wouldn't build one road."

Since the taxpayers will have to pick up the tab anyway, he said, they ought to do so in higher "user" taxes which could be applied immediately in getting the highways built.

Miss Dallas, who left early in June on a tour of United States military bases in the Pacific, was the guest of President Syngman Rhee and Mrs. Rhee on June 11, when the First Lady of Korea served Jasmine tea and cookies for the "Indiana Belles" and entertained them with a half-hour special program of music.

Before leaving Carrier Mills Miss Dallas obtained the names of several men in military service from this area.

She has mentioned in letters to her parents seeing in Tokyo Truman O'Keefe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur O'Keefe, Walter Dallas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Dallas, Carrier Mills, Ben Russell Jr., New Burnside, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gobel Duton of Harrisburg.

She is keeping a diary of her trip which contains many colorful details of the activities of the Indiana Belles, countless pictures and comments on the countries visited and the people.

Midwest Bakes In 100-Degree Temperatures

By United Press

The hottest weather of the year bakes the nation's midsection today with a 100-degree midsummer heat wave.

Heat records tumbled throughout the Midwest and steaming humidity added to the misery in the early morning hours.

No immediate relief was in sight for many areas, although a cool front was expected to crack the heat wave in sizzling Chicago by night. Scoreboards were feared elsewhere until this weekend.

Record-breaking highs Tuesday included 99.3 at Chicago and 101 at Milwaukee—both new tops for the date. It was 102 at Sioux City, Sac City, and Oskaloosa in Iowa and at Beloit, Wis. The hottest temperatures were registered at Blythe and Daggett, Calif., where the mercury went to 103.

At Cedar Rapids, Iowa, 81-year-old Knute Longfield collapsed from the heat and hospital attendants discovered the older was excessively protected against the weather.

The Russians breezed through the Caterpillar plant, apparently not bothered by muggy 90-degree heat.

Longfield explained that he suffered from rheumatism.

The temperature went into the 90s at Hart, Mich., but most of the heat was about cold weather. The Michigan Christmas Tree Assn. was meeting to draft plans for the sale of evergreens next December.

In Detroit the mid-summer heat wave had already tied a longevity record by burning the Motor City's record of 15 plus 90 days in July appeared sure to be tied today and Pittsburgh, Pa., expect the hottest day of the year.

HOLY LAND TOUR:

Five Area Ministers Assigned to English Churches at Baptist World Alliance

By Dr. Archie E. Brown
PARIS, FRANCE — July 14 — We begin this installment in Paris, France. It will be ended in London, England, because we leave for there this afternoon.

Our stay in Paris has been a very short one. We arrived here night-before-last (Tuesday) at about 11:00 p. m. By the time we bathed and put out our daily washing, it was way past bed time.

By the way, some of these men are having quite a time doing their own washing. I have had a lot of fun with them about it. My many years of experience working for my brother, Walter, in his cleaning and pressing shop in Harrisburg (Brownie's Cleaners) is paying off again. I say, again, because it has paid off many times since I left Harrisburg in 1940. In fact, I literally "pressed" my way through college and seminary in Fort Worth, Texas.

Anyways, I am having no problems on this trip with my laundry.

Yesterday morning we were supposed to leave the hotel at 10:00 a. m. on a sight-seeing tour of Paris. We waited and waited. About 11:45 a. m. the bus came. He had been involved in an accident and was being held by the police at that time. It seems that they have the same law here that they have in Fort Worth, Texas. When there is an automobile wreck, you can't move either car until the police arrive and make an investigation. No matter how much you may have traffic tied up, you will receive a stiff fine if you move your car.

Visit Versailles

When we finally did get started, we visited many interesting historical sites in Paris. We drove out to Versailles first. Now, here I was in for a surprise. I had always thought of Versailles as being a large city all by itself. It is not. It is a small suburb of Paris. The main thing of interest here is the Versailles King's Palace.

This palace was built by King Louis XIV. It was built to satisfy the ego of one man. He wanted to outdo all other kings, at any cost.

This palace has in it 2,000 rooms. It has 1,000 fire places. Every room is gorgeously furnished and finished. Many of the original furnishings remain to this day.

We visited the Royal Chapel in the palace where Louis XIV and Marie Antoinette worshipped. We were in his bedroom and, also, in her's. The carpet in Marie Antoinette's bedroom is the one that she used. It was at one time bought by Betty Hutton, and later she gave it back to the palace.

Every wall and ceiling in every room has beautiful paintings by famous French artists.

It was in the hall of mirrors in this palace that the peace treaty was signed which ended World War I. It was here that the League of Nations was set up. Woodrow Wilson, United States President, played an important role here.

I could go on and on about Versailles, but space will not permit. Next we visited the famous Arc de Triomphe. This is the largest Arc in the world. It was built to commemorate the victories of Napoleon Bonaparte. It has pictures carved in stone, of his famous victories. This Arc rises high in the air above the street. Cars constantly move around it day and night.

Through this Arc General Pershing marched his troops in 1917. They have a statue of Pershing near here. General Eisenhower stood under this Arc at the close of World War II and made a talk. Arrive in London

In the center of the pavement beneath the Arc there is a flame of fire. It has never gone out throughout all these years.

Hitler stood here for a brief time during World War II, but his day of triumph was short lived.

We visited the Louvre. This is the largest museum of art in the world. Here we saw famous art and statuary from all over the world. We saw several paintings depicting the life of Christ. A single painting would cover a wall twenty or thirty feet long. We saw the famous "Winged Victory" statue, and the statue of Venus de Milo. We saw the crowns, diadems and swords of Louis XIV.

Later we visited the famous Notre Dame Cathedral. Napoleon was crowned here. Joan of Arc worshipped here. There are thirty seven chapels for worship inside this one cathedral.

We arrived back at our hotel about 2:00 p. m., ate our lunch, rested a little while, and now we are waiting for our bus to take us to the airport. We leave for London, England at 4:00 p. m.

LONDON, July 16—We arrived in London, England about 5:30 p. m. Thursday. By the time we rode the bus from the airport into London, and our hotel, ate our dinner, and put out our mighty wash, it was bed-time. We are in the Bryanston Court Hotel in the center of the downtown section of London. We consider ourselves most fortunate to have these accommodations. It is not as nice as the hotels in the states, but we are quite comfortably situated.

Yesterday we drove to St. Albans. This is a small city about twenty-five miles from London. The primary point of interest here is the St. Albion's Abby. This church is a little over 1,000 years old. It was built in 1077 A. D. It is the oldest cathedral still standing in England. William the Conqueror ordered it built. Today, it is an Anglican Episcopal Church. It has one large, beautiful stained glass window dedicated to World War I heroes.

To Preach at Bedford

We left St. Albions and drove to Bedford, England. Bedford is famous because of John Bunyan, the author of "Pilgrim's Progress." My heart thrills as I stand at the spot where John Bunyan for twelve years remained in prison. It was from Bedford that John Bunyan wrote that famous book: "Pilgrim's Progress." It came as a result of the leadership of God giving him visions. Bunyan had been placed in prison because he preached the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Assigned to Five Churches

The session is being closed by the roll call of the nations. Representatives from all nations are bringing brief greetings. Among the many nations, you will be interested to know that there are delegates from both East and West Zones of Germany. Also, there are two Russian Baptists here from Moscow. The one speaking has just said: "Even though we are separated by a political line, in Christ we are one." This brought a rousing cheer from the thousands of delegates in Royal Albert Hall. It is a thrill to hear the hymn singing in which the voices of people from many nations are praising God. I am reminded that the Bible teaches that one day, "every knee shall bow and every tongue shall confess that Christ is Lord of Lords and King of Kings."

SUNDAY, July 17—This has been a red-letter day in my life. At 6:00 a. m. five of us "rolled out," had coffee, and left for the Bedlow area. Our party was: Dr. Noel M. Taylor, Rev. L. H. Moore, Rev. B. J. Murrie, Dr. James M. Baldwin and myself. We took first the "tube" (in N. Y., it is the subway) out to the city limits of London. We changed trains once underground. We took the bus from there to Bedlow, England, where we were assigned to five different churches in the area.

What a glorious privilege was mine! I was assigned to the city of Elstow, which is a suburb of Bedlow. Elstow is the birthplace of John Bunyan. I saw the very spot in a field where he was converted. He was playing tit tat when he heard the voice of the Lord from heaven. I saw the place of his birth and the church where he first preached.

Today, I preached three times, morning, afternoon and night. There were nine professions of faith in these services. When I left the church to catch my train back to London, the people were weeping and rejoicing. It was a great day for all of us.

Dave Evans Advertises 'Davy Crockett' Special For His Namesake

Dave Evans, who has been operating the Tastee-Freez at 317 E. Poplar street for a few weeks, has a "Davy Crockett special" advertised in today's classifieds. Mr. Evans, who was called by his family "Davy Crockett" from his earliest recollection, has had a tremendous "charge" over the present day wave of Davy Crockett hero worship.

When he first learned in school about the real Davy Crockett give an address of welcome. It was he who placed the crown upon Queen Elizabeth's head when she was crowned Queen of England. His message of welcome was well received by this great throng of Baptists present in Royal Albert Hall. Dr. Louie E. Newton, Atlanta, Georgia, gave the responsive address.

Dr. F. Townley Lord, England, is President of the Baptist World Alliance. This is the golden jubilee congress of the World Alliance. Its first meeting was held here in London in 1905.

Royal Albert Hall is gorgeously decorated in deep red, bright gold and pastel blue colors. In front, and over the speaker's platform is a huge banner in black, red and gold bearing the insignia: "Golden Jubilee Congress, 1955, London." High up on either side of the wall two other banners are prominently

Comedian Fired Second Time

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—The management of the Dunes Hotel said today it fired comedian Wally Cox for the second time in less than two weeks because "he was miserable and had no more business appearing here than on the moon."

Cox's television's timid Mr. Peepers, was fired Tuesday night for failing to "cut the mustard" on his second chance as the headliner act in the Dunes' Arabian Room. A hotel spokesman said Cox will be replaced by Mickey Rooney and Joey Foreman tonight.

Austria Free After 17 Years Of Foreign Rule

VIENNA. Austria (UPI)—Austria became a free nation today for the first time since 1938.

A brief ceremony in Moscow put the Austrian state treaty into effect. This signified the end of four-power rule and the rebirth of independence for this little nation of 7 million persons.

It was a momentous occasion for the Austrians, who have endured 17 years of foreign rule set off by Adolf Hitler and concluded by a decade of joint government by the United States, Britain, France and Russia.

They celebrated by unfurling the red-white-green Austrian flag and drinking toasts with wine and beer served free in most cafes. All radio stations interrupted their regular programs to flash the freedom announcement and play triumphal music. Newspapers published special editions. Vienna resembled the city of music and gaiety it used to be.

The treaty, which the four governing powers signed May 15 after 10 years of haggling, took effect when France deposited its ratification document at the Kremlin at luncheon time. The other signatory powers had completed ratification earlier.

The four-power Allied Council, which had governed Austria for the past decade, immediately declared itself dissolved. American, Soviet, British and French flags were lowered from the council building in downtown Vienna.

The Austrian government considered the nation fully and legally free following the treaty ceremony even though four-power troops were still deployed about the country. According to the treaty, occupation forces have 90 days to leave the country.

Rev. Todd Taylor, pastor of the Raleigh Baptist church, was also a counselor.

There were many decisions made for Christ in both sessions, several surrendered for special service and 16 were saved.

Returns from Two Weeks as Counselor At Lake Sallateeska

Cecil Abney of 505 West Elm has returned from serving two weeks as counselor to intermediate and junior Baptist Royal Ambassadors at Lake Sallateeska between Pinckneyville and Nashville.

The junior boys are aged 9 to 12 and the intermediates, 13 to 17. There was much recreation, mission study, worship services and eating of wholesome food. The first week, July 11 to 15, Rev. Bratcher, a representative of the American Bible Society in Brazil, gave several talks on his work in Brazil, and during the week of July 18-21, Rev. Ewell Payne, a missionary to the Indians of North Carolina, was in charge of the mission study programs.

Rev. Todd Taylor, pastor of the Raleigh Baptist church, was also a counselor.

Exchange of Visits by Top U. S. and Soviet Leaders Discussed, Ike Says

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President of an exchange of visits by top leaders of both governments.

Mr. Eisenhower told a news conference that no definite proposals were made at Geneva for a visit to Russia by U. S. leaders or for Soviet leaders to visit the United States.

But he indicated that the idea of such an exchange of visits was raised during a discussion of increasing personal contacts between Russia and the United States.

Mr. Eisenhower said that in his personal contacts with Russian leaders about letting each other see how the other lived, opportunities were discussed for arranging such contacts throughout the whole echelon of government—from the very top down.

The President drew a distinction between what was discussed in his personal contacts with Russian leaders and formal discussions on the subject.

Discussing other aspects of the Geneva summit meeting, Mr. Eisenhower:

Said he got along excellently with his old friend, Soviet Marshal and Defense Minister Georgi Zhukov. Although they agreed their personal talks would be private, the President said Zhukov's main effort was to impress on him the deep desire of the Soviet Union for peace.

Said he believes his proposal for exchanging military blueprints with Russia should be worked out by technicians and that any exchange should be complete.

Said the leaders of Russia, the United States, Britain and France had engaged in debate, sometimes very actively, without resorting to the old method of talking in terms of abuse. He expressed hope that the great powers would never lose their approach.

Discounted the likelihood that the friendly atmosphere created at Geneva might cause the United States to let down its defenses.

Other subjects Mr. Eisenhower told reporters:

Dixon-Yates: Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams has assured him that Congress has all the pertinent facts about Adams' personal intervention with the Securities & Exchange Commission to get a recess in the SEC's Dixon-Yates hearings. Adams, who has declined to testify before a Senate group looking into the matter, has nothing to add to previous testimony anyway, Mr. Eisenhower said.

Minimum Wage: He has received no recommendation from Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell on whether to approve a $1 minimum wage bill, but will make a decision after Mitchell does talk to him.

Military Reserves: He doesn't know yet if he is satisfied with the new military reserve bill, because he hasn't had time to study it.

Boy, 14, Sets Swimming Record In Mississippi

FORT GAGE, Ill. (UPI) — Fourteen-year-old Roberto Maddalena Jr., an Argentine schoolboy, today set an individual distance mark in the Mississippi River for swimmers his age.

Young Roberto churned down the dark Mississippi from St. Louis to the Okaw River mouth, about two miles north of here, in 16 hours and 39 minutes.

The party of Argentines accompanying him claimed a record of 63 miles.

Maddalena is the protege of Argentina's long-distance swimmer Antonio Abertondo.

Abertondo and Coach Sebastian Dibar took turns keeping the boy company in the water diving from an accompanying cabin cruiser.

Abertondo, three-time conqueror of the English Channel, will try to swim 300 miles in the Mississippi, non-stop, in 100 hours Thursday or Friday. He failed in two previous attempts, once by only 30 miles.

Following the 300-mile attempt, Abertondo plans to go to England later this summer to attempt the first successful round-trip crossing of the channel.

Algeria is part of metropolitan France, with representatives in the Parliament at Paris.

Senate, House Unable to Agree On Foreign Aid

By United Press

The big foreign aid money bill hit a new snag today which may prolong this session of Congress.

House-Senate conferees reported they got nowhere in their first effort to resolve the differences between the two chambers.

The House had cut $627,900,000 out of the $3,266,641,750 requested by President Eisenhower. The Senate put most of the cut back in.

Today the House conferees served notice they will not accept the Senate's proposal for settlement.

House and Senate leaders originally hoped to wind up the session at the end of this week. But

Reds Unaccount For 470 in U. S. Armed Forces

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department said today that 470 members of the U. S. armed forces in the Korean War remain unaccounted for and some of them may be held prisoners by the Communists.

In reply to a request by Senate GOP Leader Sen. William F. Knowland, the Defense Department said in a letter that the Reds failed to account for 944 Americans after the Korean truce.

The department said that it never believed all the unaccounted for were alive and held prisoner by the Reds. The demand on the Reds to account for them was an attempt to force them to live up to an armistice provision that each side should give a "full accounting" for all prisoners.

"Through our own efforts we have accounted for 474 of the personnel on the list presented to the Communists," the department said.

"As to the fate of the 470 remaining missing from the Korean War, we have no evidence that they are still alive or being held by the Communists. However, it is possible that at some date in the future the Communists will admit holding in China additional U. S. personnel."

The only members of the armed services known to be prisoners of the Reds now are 11 airmen and 2 Army civilians.

Circuit-Riding Chaplains--Troops Call Them 'God's Traveling Salesmen'

By FRED SPARKS
NEA Staff Correspondent

WITH U. S. FLEET IN THE PACIFIC—(NEA)—On a tiny U. S. patrol ship, part of our fleet guarding Oriental waters, a 17-year-old sailor was in deep depression.

It was his first time away from home, and the news seemed bad; mother ill, father's farm, in a drought area, near bankruptcy. He thought himself unpopular with shipmates. For weeks he spoke only on duty; his work suffered.

The captain tried to help the lad—without success. Then he sent this signal:

"Task Force Commander X Appreciate Morale Visit from Chaplain X."

At dawn, in a heavy sea, an aircraft carrier came alongside, shot over a line. A chaplain crossed in a bosun's chair, bobbing like a yo-yo.

In the privacy of a vacated cabin, he spent long hours with the despondent one, convinced him all is never black. Like a cured patient the boy soon labored with fresh vigor.

This small story illustrates how our armed forces—farther away from home and for longer periods than ever before in peace—make wise use of uniformed religious leaders. "The chaplain," said one officer, "is the only person a soldier or sailor feels he can tell intimate problems as if to a parent."

Military awareness that a man's troubled inner self needs treatment as much as a torn body coincides with our nation's religious revival. It puts new demands on chaplains abroad where land and sea forces are widely scattered.

The chaplains corps makes increasing use of "circuit riders" to visit foreign U. S. installations too minor for full time assignment. Troopers call them "God's traveling salesmen"; their kits bulge with Bibles, crosses and rosaries for distribution.

On a global screen we'd see, on the same day:

—A Protestant chaplain riding an armed convoy in the jungle outside Bangkok, heading for a unit of U. S. artillerymen training a Thai regiment.

—A Protestant chaplain alighting from a helicopter on a Bavarian Alp to hold services for a maneuvering company of our First Division.

—A Jewish chaplain on muleback climbing a Turkish hill where several of his faith—from nearby U. S. radar stations—wait in a tent synagogue.

It's hardest to bring guidance to U. S. bases and ships in Southeast Asia, with distances great, transport scarce, and available religious facilities Hindu, Moslem or Shinto.

More than 200 chaplains cover this one-third of the earth, directed by Capt. Warren Cuthrell, Chief Pacific Fleet Chaplain.

They're burdened with odd morale problems, often female. One sailor on Guam wanted the chaplain to get him transferred because: "A Guamanian girl is after me and I'm afraid I might want to marry her."

Another chaplain had to ask a pilot in the Philippines to pay back alimony. A Formosan girl told a chaplain she loved the Marine, all right, but why become a Christian? What was wrong with Buddha?

Young Americans are stationed in lands where corruption comes cheap. They're Rockefellers by native standards; in Indo-China a girl can be "leased" for $100 yearly.

The chaplains warn against excess with a father's gentle firmness. They caution about poking fun at local customs and telling Asians "the right way to get things done is the American way."

To check mileage clocked by "circuit riders," I talked with Cmdr. Thomas J. Wootten, a Catholic chaplain from Philadelphia. In recent months he's held services on the high seas, Indo-China, Japan, Formosa, the Philippines, Hong Kong and Korea.

He shifted from ship-to-ship by plane.

Lucky Dogs New Attraction for Saline County Fair

The first completely new attraction devised for fairs in more than two decades, Lucky Dogs, will be seen at the Saline County fair next Tuesday night.

The program of racing greyhounds was especially planned for fair entertainment. Modeled exactly after the presentations at the famed Florida winter dog tracks, with the single exception that betting is not allowed, the racing program is one of the most thrilling spectacles ever devised for family entertainment.

The fleet greyhounds, among the fastest four-legged animals on earth, race at speeds in excess of 50 miles per hour in eight separate races. As in Florida, the dogs are first enclosed in cages at the start of the track. A meek rabbit, attached in this instance, to a motorcycle, flashes by and the dogs are released simultaneously to pursue the gadget. At the end of the course, as the rabbit disappears from view, the dogs in the order of their finish, are caught in a "catch curtain" and returned to their trailer kennels.

The dogs are individually numbered and wear their own colors so that they can be easily identified at all times. In addition, a skilled announcer, such as those employed at the regular dog tracks, calls the progress of the race from start to finish.

Lucky Dogs is limited in its appearance and the meet scheduled for the Saline County fair is the only one in this area, an arrangement which was made when officials booked the novel canine show last winter.

Because of the expected interest and demand for seats, officials announced that tickets would be available in advance.

A design for a new chapel was drawn, the area prepared. Then radioactive fall-out canceled the plan. It is a naked monument to these troubled times.

VIENNA, Austria — The bulk of U. S. occupation forces will leave Austria during the next 30 days, American authorities said today. BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY
 Behold I stand at the door and knock.—Rev. 3:20.

After Geneva—What?

By Sumner Ahlbum
 So now the "captains and the kings" depart. The summit meetings have produced neither rancor, nor jubilation. Nor any concrete result to mend the riven world.

The Russians fly back to their problems in Moscow, which have neither grown nor lessened during the week of Geneva.

President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Eden and Premier Faure return to their own capitals to resume business where they left off. Despite their smiling faces, the "new look" Russians have not proven themselves substantially more yielding than their gloomy predecessors.

Despite their sincere wish to cooperate, the Western leaders have not made any naive commitments such as were made at Yalta and Potsdam.

The Russians have not knocked Germany out of the Western line-up. We have not persuaded the Russians that Germany should be reunited and in NATO.

The Russians have not persuaded us to throw away our H-bomb lead in the weapons race. We have not persuaded them to disband their vast armies and free the satellites.

Highlight of the talks was President Eisenhower's "bolt from the blue" offer for a complete exchange between Russia and the U.S. of military blueprints and free mutual air inspection.

Coming almost extemporaneously and at the eleventh hour of the conference, the offer electrified Geneva and produced reactions of varying intensity around the world.

As the dust began to settle, however, it was noted that there were several "bugs" in the proposal.

For instance:

The Russians already possess blueprints of most of our military establishments; we have virtually no intelligence on theirs. Hence the Russians would not snap up a one-way proposition.

Mr. Eisenhower undoubtedly has authority as President to make an offer to permit free air inspection of U.S. military installations—but could he make it stick? The law forbids unauthorized flying over such establishments as the big atomic energy plants at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Hanford, Wash., and Los Alamos.

It now appears that congressional leaders were not even sounded out about this plan before the President left for Geneva.

In a dispatch from Geneva, NEA's diplomatic reporter, Leon Dennen, notes that the Russians cannot go along with Mr. Eisenhower because they are afraid to reveal the extent of their lag behind the U.S. in nuclear developments.

The President is too sincere to have tossed out his plan merely for propaganda but the effect upon world opinion could not have been better if he had been advised by Phineas T. Barnum, Steve Hanna and Batton, Barton, Durstine and Osborne.

Prepare to Blast Off—Oops

The big worry about the World of the Future is the People of the Future. Will trains which travel around the world on the atoms contained in the ticket always be on time? Can you still argue politics in a kitchen which dispenses meals in the form of radioactive vitamin capsules? That kind of stuff.

There's a gleam of hope that things won't change much.

When the first commercial atom-produced electricity was turned on upper New York state the other day, a TV girl was to cook the first atomic hamburger as the press looked on.

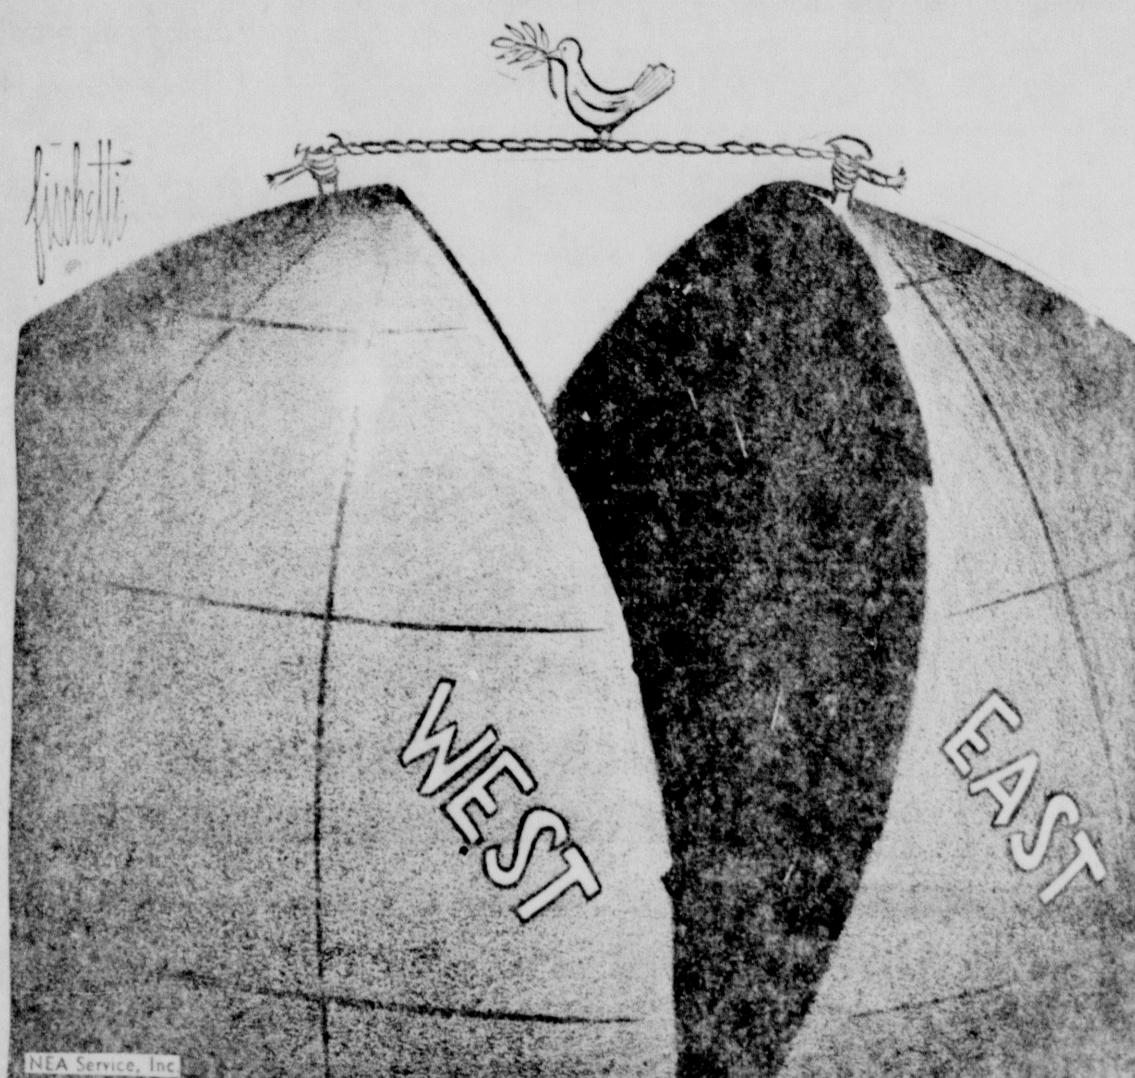

Sure enough, when it just started to turn brown the power went off. A few of the assembled electrical big shots fiddled with the stove. No good.

Everybody waited and pretty soon the juice came on again.

"Saliva Thread"
 The thread of a spider is made of saliva-type material secreted in the spider's tail. It comes out as a liquid and hardens on exposure to the air.

A wet wash cloth in a plastic bag is a handy item to have in the glove compartment when motoring with small children.

Geneva Result

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Geneva Conference Advanced Likelihood Of World Peace; Eisenhower Superb In Handling Vital Foreign Policy; Air-Inspection Plan Big Psychological Victory For U. S.

PARIS. — Regardless of what the Big Four conference at Geneva did for the peace of the world—though I, for one, am convinced it helped—there's no question it did a lot to advance the likelihood that President Eisenhower will run for a second term.

At Geneva, Ike was doing what he likes to do most, what he did as commander of the allied forces during World War II. He was getting away from the political head aches he so detests, away from the Dixon-Yates controversy—and the $60,000 Harold Talbot took from his engineering firm while pushing defense contracts, away from the question of a 90-cent or a $1 minimum wage. When President Eisenhower has to grapple with these problems he sometimes throws up his hands in despair and disgust.

But handling America's vital foreign policy which shapes the peace of the world is what Eisenhower envisaged when he agreed in 1952 to run for President. This is what he did at Geneva last week and he did it superbly. Therefore Ike advisers feel he's now in a mood as never before to run in 1956. The platform would be "peace in our time" with a coalition-ticket Democrat as vice-president. In fact, a close group of friends have already been given the green light to start raising campaign funds, dependent on only one thing—the recurrent high blood pressure which has given Eisenhower trouble in recent years but which stays low when he has taken enough time off. This is something he must watch with great care and is the reason for his long week ends and frequent vacations, but his friends believe that, barring a last-minute medical check and too much domestic unpleasantness, he's now in a mood to make the race.

NO "YALTA" BY IKE

Presidential political advisers who feared Ike would pull a "Yalta" at Geneva now have nothing to fear on that score. Eisenhower ran the conference largely by himself and, while it's true that Dulles held one secret press conference to straighten out a presidential bubble, the conference would have gone better if Dulles had kept more in the background.

It was Ike's sole decision to propose the reciprocal inspection of United States and Russian military establishments by air. Military advisers at the Pentagon had opposed this ever since Harold Stassen concocted the idea last March. Their opposition was, one reason why Stassen and Nelson Rockefeller were left in Paris and only brought to Geneva at the last minute. Eisenhower felt the timing was right to propose the inspection plan at Geneva, overrode the military, and sprang it on the Russians. It was the most important psychological victory the U. S. has scored since V-E day. The Russians never did get off the spot on which Eisenhower's air-inspection plan placed them.

HAGERTY DELETES

Secretary Dulles' secret press conference, held late at night, to reverse his chief came after President Eisenhower had acquiesced to the general idea of Premier Niko-lai's security plan which horrified Dulles. This leaked out thanks to Sir George Young, the somewhat naive British press officer who gave an accurate summary of what happened in the Big Four conference which Dulles didn't want reported.

What happened was that, after Premier Bulganin presented his security plan, Ike rose and, wanting to keep harmony, rambled along most amiably—pretty much as he does in his press conference when trying to please all sides. Only after these conferences press Secretary Hagerty cuts out for television and radio any statements by Ike that might be embarrassing or contradictory. Hagerty also cut out Ike's remarks on Bulganin's proposal. But, when he briefed the press in this instance, he forgot to tell Sir George to make the same cut at the British briefing.

So here is what Sir George quoted Ike as saying about the Bulganin proposal of putting European security ahead of German unification: "This is unusually interesting and merits careful study. I've talked with every member of the Soviet delegation and am profoundly convinced that they desire peace, as I do. The problem is how to build a bridge and this can hardly be solved in the time allotted this conference. Also, since this concerns others, they should be invited to join in the pact proposed by Premier Bulganin."

"Bulganin has spoken of this need. This conference can hardly consider all these problems we must work out on how to build a bridge and the time has come to ask if we could suggest a conference to be called to consider German unification and collective security in more detail. Our conference must not end without the delegations having shown that they are honestly working for peace."

DISERVICE TO IKE

Nickell said his office has already sent out notices to all school officials that no more checks can be made payable until the loyalty oaths have been signed and placed on file. He said a mail inspection will be made about Sept. 1 to see that this has been done.

Farmers Reminded To Dispose of Excess Corn Acreage by Aug. 1

Farmers who have exceeded their 1955 corn allotment have the privilege of disposing of such excess acres by Aug. 1. Paul B. Whitlock, chairman of the Saline County ASC office, stated today.

Any acreage of corn plowed or disc'd under, or totally destroyed by causes beyond the farmer's control, by Aug. 1 will not be counted against the allotment. Notice of any such action should immediately be given to the county ASC office so that an official redetermination of acreage can be made, said Mr. Whitlock. This will require a payment of $5.

In some instances of late measured farms, an extension in time for plowing under will be permitted. Any farmers to whom this exception applies will be sent an individual letter specifying the exact date by which action must be taken. Only those farmers, continued the chairman, who comply with the corn allotment program will be eligible for 1955 corn price support. The national minimum average rate has been established at $1.58 per bushel.

All farmers interested in obtaining 1955 loans or purchase agreements on corn should make certain that the corn acreage on their farms have been officially determined. If the allotment has been exceeded, it is suggested that they immediately consider disposing of the excess by Aug. 1.

Approximately 65 per cent of all fields sown in the United States comes from the spruce pine area of North Carolina.

IT'S A TOSS-UP—One had to step aside when identical twins were selected as a single entry in the "Miss Washington" beauty-talent search in the nation's capital. Half-Cent Sales Tax Finds Increasing Favor Among Cities, Municipal League Says

SPRINGFIELD — At least 80 Daley to ease the cities' financial pains.

Pros and Cons

Galesburg is among cities pondering the pros and cons of the proposed tax but has taken no action. Further north, Rockford is expected to adopt the tax.

In Springfield, Howarth made his announcement at a public meeting called for a discussion of the tax plan.

He said the council has not made any "commitment" for a city sales tax, but indicated he considers the sales tax the best way to solve the city's financial problems.

Illinois cities "will embark on the wildest spending spree in Illinois history," he said. "City councils, drunk with funds, may run riot and substitute for a 'Do we need it' yardstick, a 'We got it, we must spend it' guide."

Under the state law, the state will collect the city sales tax along with the 2 1/2 cent state sales tax and retain a small percentage to cover collection costs.

Other cities which have enacted the tax ordinance include Carbondale, Champaign, Decatur, Collinsville, Marion, Pekin, Pinckneyville, Vandalia, Highland Park and Waukegan.

Here's why Record-Breaking Thousands Name Pontiac "America's Greatest Buy!"

It takes only one word to explain why today's Pontiac is the most popular Pontiac ever built. That word is VALUE.

Buyers from both ends of the price scale are finding that Pontiac provides just about everything any car at any price can offer. It's a matter of fact, not opinion, that Pontiac is the biggest, most powerful car anywhere near its modest price!

For size, Pontiac reaches high into the fine-car price range—and comes up with a long 122" or 124" wheelbase. This is size where it counts, because nothing beats

Moderns' Spelling No Worse Than Usual

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — Professors of English at Pennsylvania State University have come to the defense of young students who are criticized by their elders for faulty spelling and grammar.

Grandpa and grandma weren't much better in their day, the professors pointed out. A report issued by the head of the school's English department in 1889 deplored lapses in grammar, as follows:

"Our young men begin their college course lame where it is above all things desirable that they should be strong . . ."

A few years later another department head showed concern about the same problem, writing: "The question of all others that is at present most troubling the department is how to deal with the marked lack of preparation in English shown by nearly all who enter the college."

Death Has 3 Lives

"It all began," said Michael Shayne evenly, "when that blundering Cossack of yours tried to force his way into Lucy's apartment while I was visiting her without any real explanation of what he wanted, and with a couple of insults tossed in for good measure when he thought she was alone."

"Wait a minute, Will," Shayne held up a big hand to shut off the chief's protest. The two men, together with Timothy Rourke and a police stenographer, were at headquarters. "I'm going to tell the whole thing straight and fast without too many excuses for Lucy without Tim pulled into it inadvertently and played ball with us for pure friendship."

He hurried on to relate concisely how Lucy had admitted to him there was a wounded young man in her bedroom.

"So . . . there it was." He spread out his palms. "Through no fault of anybody's really. Jack was an old friend of Lucy's and had sworn to her he'd committed no crime. She didn't know about 18th Street or the strangled girl. I did get on a phone fast, Will, and make an anonymous call to headquarters giving Bristol's name and description. Then I beat it to the rooming house on 18th to see what I could find out."

He related how the woman had stopped him with questions as he was getting into his car.

"She was scared of cops, and wouldn't have talked to any of you," he argued. "I did manage to get some dope out of her, and got a hunch she was mixed up with Bristol and the killing somehow. So, I put her on ice at the motel. That license number you've got belongs to my Hudson, Will."

Will Gentry was seated stolidly across from Shayne at his desk, mangling the butt of his cigar between strong teeth. "I recognized the license number soon as I saw it, Mike. Go on from there."

"You and Rourke turned up at Lucy's right after I got back," Shayne shrugged. "Can you say now, that it would have helped any if I'd come clean at that point?"

"The woman from the motel would probably still be alive."

"There was no evidence to tie her to what had happened. Just

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — America is a woman's country, a London woman who heads three war birds' associations said on a visit here.

"I'm amazed at the partnership of husband and wife in America," Mrs. Rose Buckner said. "Why, American husbands even help their wives do dishes and there's not a thing wrong with it. England is a man's country, you know. We suit the husband first."

Mrs. Buckner said she believes English women may someday enjoy the same relationship with their husbands that American women do "but it'll take time."

my hunch. I doubt whether you'd even bothered to question her at that time. If you had, I doubt seriously you'd have put a guard over her," protested Shayne, the trenches showing deep in his cheeks. "Later, I made a bad mistake leading the killer to her, but I don't believe keeping still at that time made any real difference."

"I don't suppose it matters to her now," said Gentry. He took the soggy cigar butt from his mouth, looked at it as if wondering how it got there.

"Next," said Shayne carefully, "was after you had gone, Will."

He drew in a deep breath and leaned forward. "I found Jack Bristol's body shoved underneath Lucy's bed with his throat slit. It hadn't been in escaping down the fire escape after all, but his murderer whom I almost caught."

"Tim!" thundered Chief Gentry. "You were in on that, too? Both of you covered up? How did Bristol get out on the street where we found him later?"

"Tim knew nothing about it," said Shayne swiftly.

"Wait a minute, Mike," interrupted the lank reporter. "Don't lie for me. If Will Gentry doesn't like what I did tonight he can prefer any sort of charges he wants."

He turned his fierily glowing eyes on the chief.

"Mike and Lucy were in a spot with that body in her bedroom. But would a cop look at it if that way?"

"You know they were telling the truth. They were caught in a lousy web of circumstances. But cops have to go by the rules. That's the way they exist."

"Once we reported the truth to you, there were certain things you would have to do. You couldn't help yourself. You'd have arrested Mike and Lucy then and there and the official investigation would have blundered on and probably got nowhere. It was my own decision to help Mike move the body."

"And because you made that decision, we've got a dead woman in the morgue," said Gentry.

"Not exactly." Timothy Rourke's eyes were fever-bright. "You've got a dead woman in the morgue, but we can identify her for you simply because Mike stayed out of your jail long enough to do the job."

"You can identify the woman?"

"Sure," said Rourke casually. "She's Beatrice Allardice from New Orleans. Wife, or widow, of one High Allardice, convicted bank robber who supposedly died in a car accident three days ago."

"I'll tell it the way it happened," said Shayne stubbornly. "Jack Bristol was dead, Will. Nothing could change that. His murderer had escaped and no one knew who he was or what he looked like. He'd been shot outside the rooming house where the woman claimed she was to meet her husband. They're both young, and it seemed to me at least reasonable to suppose he might be the missing husband. So I bundled him up in one of Lucy's blankets and took him out to the motel to see if she could identify him."

Will Gentry had gotten out a fresh cigar and was angrily biting the end off it. "Like a one-man police force," he said bitterly. "All right, what laws did you break next?"

Tips on Traffic Safety

By CHARLES F. CARPENTIER
Secretary of State

Motorists should always use "caution" as their by-word when behind the wheel of an auto. This is especially true at night when the responsibilities of a driver are multiplied.

More persons are killed or injured in traffic accidents at night than during the busier daytime period.

On the open road, speeds should be reduced by at least ten miles per hour as compared to safe daytime speeds. In town, too, lower speeds should be used. Drivers should be especially cautious when approaching intersections where there is little or no lighting.

On the open road the driver must be prepared for the numerous emergencies which become doubly dangerous when night falls.

The city driver must be ever aware of the tasks which present difficulties during the daytime and which become more serious obligations at night, such as motorists and pedestrians crossing intersections against traffic signals, cars suddenly pulling into traffic from parked positions, and jay walkers.

Remember, always exercise caution when driving, but be particularly cautious when operating a vehicle at night.

A copy of the completely new "Rules of the Road" booklet will be sent to you free upon request. Write to CHARLES F. CARPENTIER, Secretary of State, Springfield, Illinois.
